

Client Development & Design

For our subsidiary in Berlin

About us

ProCom is an innovative company, with an informal and friendly environment. Our teams are a mix of young and experienced people committed to deliver products with high quality to our customers. ProCom serves industrial and production companies as well as transmission system operators and energy traders. Our solutions help to make processes and energy portfolios more transparent in terms of time frames and markets. With these and other energy-related aspects, ProCom is making an important contribution to the energy transformation.

We are building a team in Berlin to make a product widely used in the energy sector fit for the next decades. This will happen as a green field project giving you influence and freedom to create something new based on proven business cases.

You will drive the user experience of the product by designing and developing simple and intuitive to use interfaces that make the work experience of our customers delightful. You will work with a small team from day one onwards and will coach and interact more and more with the other teams over time.

Technologies

- Free to choose, we are not addicted to market trends
- SPA with any wide spread JS framework (React, Angular, etc.)

Your Profile

- Degree in computer science or a comparable qualification
- Experienced in developing and designing software with a focus on user experience
- Open-minded, willing to learn new ways to get the job done and gather new skills
- Personal initiative, commitment, resilience
- Very good structural, analytical and solution-oriented thinking and acting
- Strong communication skills, initiative and team competence
- Passion and enthusiasm for new technologies

We Offer

- Flexible time management
- Education budget for your personal development training
- Fringe benefits
- A sustainably operating family-run business with flat hierarchies and an open communication
- A tech position with high degrees of responsibility and autonomy
- The possibility of building something new in an ambitious team
- A dynamic and exciting market environment with constant new challenges and tasks

Identify with ProCom!

We are looking forward to receive your application along with details regarding your earliest possible start date and salary requirements, preferably sent via email to Janin Schulz.

Email: bewerbung@procom.de | Telephone: +49 (0) 241 51804-119

This job opportunity is for all qualified applicants independent of age, disability, religion, ideology, ethnicity or sexual identity.

